Melissa has created and implemented programming about the Holocaust, genocide, antisemitism, and racism for students from elementary school through to university, as well as law enforcement personnel and educators. In this program, Melissa will share the moving true story of a young girl's survival during the Holocaust, along with the powerful role played by a precious doll that brought the author and the survivor together decades later. She will also discuss her years of experiences working with Holocaust survivors to help ensure that their stories are not forgotten.
