EXTRAMURAL FUNDING

Lilly Endowment, Inc. (2017), Comprehensive Counseling Initiative for Indiana K-12 students. Grant proposal submitted by the Indiana Department of Correction in partnership with Theresa Ochoa, Indiana University, and Corinne Datchi, Seton Hall University. Project title: “HOPE (Helping Offenders Prosper through Employment) for Indiana Students in Juvenile Correctional Schools”. Amount budgeted for my role in the project and my travel expenses: $5,000.

American Psychological Foundation (2009), Violence Prevention and Intervention Grant, awarded October 2009. Project title: “Using an evidence-based systemic approach to the prevention of adult violence: A pilot program of Functional Family Therapy for adult offenders in a local community corrections agency and probation department.” Amount awarded: $20,000.

National Endowment for the Humanities (December 2020). Promotion of the Humanities Research. Project title: “Identity in the age of streaming.” Collaborative proposal submitted with co-PI Laura Di Suma Knoop.

CURRENT RESEARCH ACTIVITIES

Helping Offender Prosper for Employment: Psychoeducation and coaching for families of incarcerated youth

Helping Offenders Prosper through Employment (HOPE) is a job mentoring program for incarcerated youth developed by Dr. Theresa Ochoa at Indiana University. In 2015, I partnered with Dr. Ochoa to develop the family component of HOPE, called “HOPE for Home”. HOPE for Home is designed to engage families in youth’s reentry planning, to support them in their efforts to maintain positive contact with the youth during incarceration, and to provide support and guidance when the youth returns home. We are collecting quantitative and qualitative data to evaluate the outcomes of HOPE for Home in a maximum juvenile detention facility in Indiana.

Going Home: Outcome evaluation of a family-based psychoeducation reentry program

Going Home is a family-based psychoeducation program for inmates who are preparing to return to their communities. I developed this intervention based on my empirical knowledge about the role of families in offender rehabilitation. The primary aim of Going Home is to increase prosocial family involvement in prisoner reentry prior to release, and to activate those family factors that increase the likelihood an individual will desist from a criminal lifestyle. In 2016, I partnered with a correctional organization to implement the program in a residential reentry facility in Newark, NJ. We are now collecting quantitative and qualitative data to evaluate the outcomes of the Going Home program.
